

Every child can learn to read and write.

Are you leaving kids behind? The sad truth is that several million students in America's schools have been diagnosed as learning disabled, many of them because they cannot read. The reality is that many of these students simply learn differently. Our revolutionary reading intervention for classrooms addresses this need by linking verbal/rational learning with physical movement. It has been proven through rigorous research, including a double-blind randomized experimental design with a control group. Supported by decades of successful application, this intervention leads to measurable results within 3 to 12 months.

Teacher Selection

It is critical to select qualified teachers who relate well with students and have integrated Capturing Kids' Hearts principles into their classroom (attending Capturing Kids' Hearts is a prerequisite). Teachers should also be comfortable with an active teaching style and be physically able to utilize this activity-based curriculum. It is not necessary for teachers to have a special education or dyslexia certificate.

Training Details

The schedule is from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. each day. The cost for the full 5-day training is $3,000, which includes an in-depth teacher's manual provided at the workshop. This one-time investment allows the teacher to teach the curriculum for years with no further cost for training or student manuals. Lodging and meals are not included.

The Flippen Group is the sole source for this training. Prices and dates subject to change. Please make checks payable to The Flippen Group. Add sales tax, if applicable.
